

BIOGRAPHY

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

MASTER SERGEANT ADAM M. BEAL

MSgt Adam M. Beal is the First Sergeant, 36th Contingency Response Group, Andersen Air Force Base, Guam. He is the principal advisor to the Commander on the health, welfare, and human resource issues of military personnel across 44 Air Force Specialty Codes. MSgt Beal assures the readiness of PACAF joint first response teams for diverse air mobility and combat missions to include contingency, humanitarian aid, disaster relief, POTUS support, and homeland defense operations. These response teams provide air base opening, air advising, and security forces. In addition, he is the First Sergeant for PACAF's only Regional Training Center providing combat and contingency training for all PACAF, sister services, and partner nation forces.

MSgt Beal entered the Air Force in June 2002 as an Aircraft Fuel Systems Apprentice. After completing Basic Military Training, he graduated Aircraft Fuel Systems training in October 2002 at Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas. He started his career working on the F-16 Fighting Falcon for the 31st Maintenance Squadron, Aviano Air Base, Italy. Later, he was selected and assigned as an Aircraft Fuel Systems Journeyman and #7 Assistant Dedicated Crew Chief to the United States Air Force Air Demonstration Squadron "Thunderbirds".

Prior to his current position, MSgt Beal served as an Aircraft Fuel Systems Section Chief for the 60th Maintenance Squadron, Travis Air Force Base, California. Sergeant Beal has been deployed seven times, to include Iraq and Afghanistan in support of Operations INHERENT RESOLVE, FREEDOM'S SENTINEL, and ENDURING FREEDOM.
